

Electrolysis

What to do after your treatment?

The healing process varies and is different for everyone. Even if the skin appears completely healed, it is possible that there are still irritations beneath the surface that are not visible from the outside.

In order to avoid unwanted reactions and infections, you should allow time for the skin to recover and regenerate.

Our aim is to successfully treat your skin so that you feel comfortable. This is why we ask you to please read and follow the recommendations below carefully.

As long as your skin has not completely regenerated you should avoid:

- Mechanical irritations such as peelings, shaving and plucking
- Swimming pools and saunas
- Touching with your fingers

As long as there are scabs please do not apply peelings or expose the skin to the sun or sunbeds.

Avoid water, soap, make-up, bleach and any other skin care products.

Please follow these instructions for at least 48 hours after the treatment. Should there still be signs that the skin has not fully recovered after this, please continue until the skin has fully recovered.

Please do not pluck any hair between treatments.